Super duplex 2507 flange are not suitable for high or low temperature service. Super Duplex Stainless Steel Flanges has low hot strength, so it may need support during heat treatment or forging. It has good high temperature oxidation resistance, like other duplex stainless steels they suffer from embrittlement if held for even short times at temperatures above 300°C. They are Hot forging should also be followed by solution treatment.

Super duplex steel flanges is usually welded or screwed, they provide easy access for cleaning, inspection or modification. It is comprised with three parts i.e, pipe flange, blotting and gasket.
